Family Support

In order to achieve our vision and remain faithful to our literacy beliefs, families can make sure students:

- Read on a daily basis, using methods aligned to the science of reading, to make meaning of text (foundational skills → comprehension).
- Practice content vocabulary gained through the units of instruction.
- Use expressive and receptive language on a daily basis to communicate with their families about what they are reading and writing.
- Engage in daily authentic writing experiences that require them to use new learning, communicate ideas, and respond to prompts on what they have read.
- Read complex, challenging text daily and practice close reading strategies to comprehend and unlock the meaning of grade-level text.
